ENGELHARD SOLDIER HAD A RISKY ASSIGNMENT

WITH THE 45TH INFANTRY DIV. IN KOREA.—Pfc. Iby O'Neil, nephew of Rufus Williams of Engelhard, recently returned from a nerve-racking mine clearing detail while serving with the 45th Infantry Division in Korea.

O'Neil was one of three men sent out to clear a mined area. They sensed there was something wrong when the spotted three Russian-type box anti-personnel mines protruding from the ground.

It was after they knelt and began dealing with them that they suddenly realized they were sitting directly on top of some concealed mines; all part of a Red plan to trap them in the field.

After a short investigation, however, it was discovered that the primers on the mines had rusted, preventing an unexpected explosion.

GOOD HEALTH

Answer to Question No. 1: The presence of stones in the gall bladder is not usually dangerous. When symptoms show the probability of gall bladder disease and the X-ray reveals gall stones, surgical removal of the gall bladder may be indicated. As a direct result of modern advances in surgery and the new drugs mortality from this operation has been reduced to almost nil.

Answer to Question No. 2: In the United States more than 95 per cent of children under the age of 15 have some decay in their permanent teeth. Parents and school officials should watch the children's teeth much more carefully, and refer the children to the family dentist or existing dental clinics. This would definitely improve dental health.

Answer to Question No. 3: Psittacosis or parrot fever is a serious disease easily transmitted to humans but rather rare in the United States. It is caused by a virus common in birds (mostly parrots), and shows itself with high fever which remains high for about three weeks. Mortality used to be about 20 per cent of those infected with the disease. Some of the newer drugs have greatly reduced the number of deaths.
