OBSERVED THIS WEEK

National Home Demonstration Week will be observed in North Carolina and through the Nation May 2-8. This is an event of great importance to Home Demonstration Club women in our State and especially to our rural people. The theme for 1954, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World", focuses attention on the fundamental nature of our Home Demonstration Club work

The broad program of Home Demonstration work relating directly to home and community life has made a great contribution to our State. It deals with sucn important subjects as child training, more efficient homtmaking, proper family nutrition, wise use of the family income, sewing instruction, the best se-lection and use of fabrics, and better housing.

Through Home Demonstration work the Extension Service encourages families to understand and face the broad problems of agriculture and their relation to world economy. It acquaints young families with the educational opportunities provided by be conducted in Canala and the the Extention Service and en-United States (including Alaska) courages families to use their influence to strengthen and enrich the communities in which they live. Home Demonstration work has emphasized that families, through organized study, planning and action can make a lasting contribution to home and community improvement.

I commend the Home Demoncoots during the 1954-55 season stration Club women and heartlouble ring ceremony.
