

METHODISTS TO OBSERVE NATIONAL FAMILY WEEK

National Family Week will be observed this year the week of May 1-8 in all Protestant churches throughout the nation. The theme for this week is "Open Your Home to God". The Mt. Olivet Methodist Church in Manteo is planning several events in observance of this week, and these are listed below:

Sunday, May 1—Children's Day—Church School Program; 11:00 a. m.—Religious Services at Fort Raleigh as part of the Pirates' Jamboree program; 7:30 p. m.—"The Difference It Makes" by Children's Division.

Tuesday, May 3—Family at Home Night. All families are urged to make a special effort to do something TOGETHER AT HOME on this particular night.

Sunday, May 8—Mother's Day—11:00 a. m. The sermon will be "Christian Marriage", and following the sermon, all married couples present are to repeat their marriage vows again. Appropriate music for this occasion is being planned by the choir; also church decorations in keeping with the occasion. Special recognition will be given the couple who has been married the longest and the couple who has been most recently married.

Sunday, May 8—7:30 p. m.—Evening Worship Service. Following this service, the Methodist Youth Fellowship will entertain their parents at a reception in the educational building.

Tuesday, May 10—7:00 p. m.—Family night at the church. This will begin with a Dutch supper. Each family should bring a dish of food and all eat together. Following supper, there will be a period of old time singing, a period of recreation, and a brief devotional. Every Methodist family is urged to come out for this event.

point in favor of the project will be the role the inland waterway played during the submarine menace of World War II. He pointed out that many oil shipments were diverted through the inland route.

"The present depth of the waterway would be a great hindrance should we find ourselves faced with a similar situation today," Willis commented.

He said a second meeting of the organization is expected to be called within the next three weeks and that a formal proposal probably will be drafted then for submission to the Engineers.

By CAROLYN LLOYD

The wonderful news of Salk vaccine brought to mind the one victim of polio whom I knew in my childhood. His name was Chris and he had had what was then called "infantile paralysis" many years before I first knew him. He wore a heavy brace on his right leg and walking was difficult for him so Chris got around on the back of a tough little cow pony (so called because the breed was best for herding cows to the dipping vat.) He tore up and down the street on that pony in the same manner that hot rodders burn up the streets today, and his elders shook their heads and murmured "That boy is going to kill himself yet."

Chris was in my grade at school, though he was several years older than anyone else in the room. As children will, we took it for granted that his advanced age meant that he was crippled in mind as well as in body. Chris must have realized our attitude, and it is a wonder that he stayed in school at all after having missed so much of his early years. It was seldom, however, that his good nature deserted him, and I suspect now that he often played the fool just to entertain us.

My most vivid memory of Chris comes with that of an occurrence when we were in the seventh grade. It was a day like any other in our crowded classroom until of smoke sent us all rushing in panic to the hallway. All, that is, the shout of "Fire" and the smell except Chris. He jumped head first out the window and landed in a coal pile. The small fire in the basement of the building was soon put out, and we returned to the classroom, keyed up with the excitement of it all. Chris, though, had to be taken to a doctor to have the coal picked out of the gashes on his head and some stitches taken. To the rest of the class it was screamingly funny that Chris had jumped out of the window into the coal pile just because there was a little old fire in the basement. Looking back, I know why he did. He must have been thrown into a panic at the thought of being trapped in the mad rush for the doorway, he who could barely walk and could never hope to run.

Chris did drop out of school some time during our high school days, and it has been many years since I have seen him, or even thought of him. However, as I listened to the radio reports on the Salk vaccine, I could see him as plainly as though we were back in the seventh grade. I hope that he is still living and that he heard the reports. If so, he surely must have looked down at the leg with the heavy braces and breathed a prayer of thanks that many boys will now be spared the mental and physical suffering that he has known.

PAINTING CLASSES BY NORTH CAROLINA ARTIST

Manteo.—Jim Pace, well-known North Carolina artist, announced today that he plans to conduct watercolor classes here from July 1 to July 30.

There will be separate sessions daily for beginners and advanced students with field trips twice weekly to picturesque points along the Outer Banks from the sand dunes of Kitty Hawk to the shrimp boats at Hatteras. Further information about the classes may be obtained by writing to Mr. Pace at Manteo, North Carolina.

Pace, whose parents live in Durham, has had a wide practical experience in many phases of creative art, and has operated a design studio in Chicago for the last three years. He has studied at numerous schools, including the University of North Carolina and the Art Students League of New York. He is a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Upon the recommendation of Elliot O'Hara, eminent watercolorist and teacher, Pace started teaching painting for the Winston-Salem Arts and Crafts Society in 1947. The summer of 1949 was spent painting with the late William Meade Prince at Manteo.

Pace's paintings now hang in many North Carolina homes, and his designs have been bought by several museums. TIME Magazine recently review his work.

After painting in Europe and the West Indies, and in the United States from Maine to California, Pace feels that there is no better place to paint than North Carolina's own far-famed Outer Banks.

JAMBOREE

Lay's Potato Chip Company, more than 700 pounds of cole slaw and almost a half a ton of potato salad.

During the luncheon period, in addition to awarding prizes to champion fishermen, Miss Mitzi Oden of Hatteras, runner up in the Miss Dare County pageant of beauty last week end, will be officially crowned "Miss Hatteras Buccaneer." This event has been somewhat modified from the original plans to have a full-scale beauty show during the event, but there will be many beautiful attendants present for the occasion including Sara Alford of Manteo who won the "Miss Dare County" title this year and will be crowned "Pirate Queen" at a Pirates Ball on Nags Head Saturday night.

Following the luncheon events, the Ocracoke Boy Scouts will present their share of the program, a thrilling race along the surf, each youngster bent on winning the purse offered the fastest pony and its owner and rider.

W. W. Edwards, chairman of the Beach Buggy race, scheduled to follow the pony classic, has announced that he has some of the best drivers to ever cross a sand dune on four wheels entered in the races. These exciting beach buggy races will compete over a course along the surf from the Lighthouse to the Cape and return.

An evening of merriment, a benefit dance at Tandy's featuring the Lazy River Boys, will conclude the Hatteras phase of the Jamboree on Friday night.

On Friday night also in the Kill Devil Hills area, Mrs. Diane Johnson of the Wilbur Wright Hotel will present a Shrimp Feast and Dancing Pirate party. This will be a benefit affair with prizes for the best in pirates costumes, but admission charges will be nominal.

The scene of action on Saturday will move northward along the coast to the Dare beaches of Kitty Hawk, Kill Devil Hills and Nags Head. Model plane contests at the Wright monument, music by Elizabeth City's famous High School "Pirate" Band, lantern-laden nag races, treasure hunts, for young and old, beach and jalopy races are some of the day-time events to be concluded with a grand Pirate Masquerade Ball at which Governor Luther Hodges, and some 100 or more State Legislators will be attendants. Features of the Saturday night ball will be crowning of a pirate queen and selection of a pirate king from one of many bearded men competing.
