ROANOKE SCHOOL HAS GROWN FROM 3 SMALL BLDGS.

The History of Negro Education on Roanoke Island Has Been One of Progress

According to information given by several of the old Negro people of Roanoke Island; Roanoke High School did not have its present name prior to the early 1900's. Before this time three Negro schools were used: One was located on what is known as the south end of the Island. It was near what was called "The Old Battle Ground". Another one was located near the old Negro Baptist Church; and was known as the Middle District. The third one was located on the northern end of the Island. Several teachers of these schools included Mrs. Kate Trifton, Mrs. Brinn, Mrs. Palmer, Charlie Midgett and John Barrington. Each of the buildings so related were one room buildings, and later on the people decided to get better schools, which resulted into the replacement of the three buildings, by building one two-story building in 1901 on the present school site.

During this early period the school was known as Roanoke Academy. Some of the teachers who taught during this consolidated period were: Mrs. Ella M. Dunbar and Oscar Woodley. Members of the early school committees were W. C. Bowser, W. B. Ashbee, J. R. Garrett, Isaiah Mann, J. S. Wescott, D. H. Hopkins and T. T. Scarborough which all were present when the first deed was recorded. The trustees were D. H. Hopkins, W. B. Ashbee, J. W. Midgett, J. S. Wescott, Levi Tillett, H. Mann, W. S. Bowser T. T. Scarborough, J. H. Berry and J. W. Woodley. These men guided this two story set-up and developed it into both a school and recreation center for the community. Later this school was turned over to the county and state and became known as Roanoke School, which came about during the time of available Rosenwald Funds.

Following this turn of events C. Carter came into being and set up a high school which lead to the present name of Roanoke High School. In late 1952 a new structure was completed which all now enjoy which is the third in a series of buildings. In the present building is to be found three classrooms, lunchroom, kitchen and all-purpose room. A beautiful campus, electric bells, filing cabinet, lunchroom chairs, new refrigerator, flag pole and an active P.T.A. headed by Mrs. Ernie McCleese is credited to the present administration. Faculty members are: W. E. Hall, B. S., M. S. and M. A. De-gree, Mrs. L. T. Boone, A. B. De-gree, Committee Members: May-lyd Scarborough, Chairman, M. C. Collins, Secretary, Seward Simmons, Coordinator.
