

NEW NATIONAL SEASHORE IS OUTER BANKS MAGNET

Hatteras. — The new Cape Hatteras National Seashore, being developed rapidly by the National Park Service, is a new magnet drawing increased travel to the once isolated Outer Banks of North Carolina.

During July of this year alone, there were 99,330 visitors to the Hatteras Seashore, up 9,728 from July of last year.

Paved road all the way on Hatteras and Crococo Islands; stepped up ferry service (State operated, toll-free) across Oregon and Hatteras Inlets, and new motels and restaurants have vastly enhanced the accessibility and comforts of the Outer Banks.

A new booklet with latest information on the Outer Banks, what's there, how to get there, and information about accommodations, has just been published and is free on request to the State Travel Bureau, P. O. Box 2719, Raleigh, N. C.

Coquina Beach in the National Seashore features modern beach architecture that is sure to be widely copied.

Deep-sea fishing is fabulous in this area, very close to the Gulf Stream. Charter boats range from marinas at Oregon Inlet and Hatteras in quest of blue and white marlin, sailfish, sword fish and other big game.

Near the resorts of Nags Head, Kitty Hawk and Kill Devil Hills, north of the Seashore Park, is Roanoke Island, where the first English settlements in America were attempted, and resulted in the fabled "Lost Colony" and the Wright Memorial, marking the first flight and birthplace of modern aviation.

LOUISBURG PARTY GETS PLENTY TROUT, CROAKER

George P. Foster and party of Louisburg, fishing Wednesday morning, with Capt. Chick Craddock of Manns Harbor, boated 112 croakers and gray trout, mixed half and half. They were fishing just north of Mashoes light over shell bottom in deep water. Many other good catches have been made recently in the vicinity of Umstead Bridge over Croatan Sound, and prospects are for continued good catches, with speckled trout, rock flounder and other species beginning soon in heavy numbers.

"CUSTARD A LA MODE— A WONDERFUL DESSERT"

Custard with ice cream? Certainly it's different, but ever so good. Both are smooth and creamy, both so rich in important dairy foods. Bake the custards in ring molds, center each with a scoop of the ice cream. Then top with sweetened crushed raspberries, and await the rush of compliments!

MONDAY
