HYDE ASC OFFICE MAKES PAYMENT TO WOOL GROWERS

Farmers selling wool in 1959 either sheared or on lambs were given an incentive payment by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in 1959 if application for this payment was made at the ASC office. Similar payments have been made on wool since 1956. The program is to encourage production of wool. Synthetics cannot entirely replace it.

There is also a similar program for 1960. Hyde County farmers selling wool or lambs in 1960 should contact the ASC office in Swan Quarter, N. C., and make application for the 1960 payment. Payments will be made on Wool and lambs sold between April 1, 1960 and March 31, 1961. The farmer cannot apply for the 1960 payment after April 30, 1961.

LARGE MOUTH BASS

Kill Devil Hills. — Fishing for large mouth bass in the waters of Kitty Hawk Bay has been very good recently, according to Clarence Butler of Holiday Marina, the best catches during early morning and late afternoon. That, he pointed out, is because large mouths show little mid-day interest in the lures that anglers cast in their direction, due to hot sun which causes the bass to seek cooler waters of greater depth.

They enjoyed deep-sea fishing Sunday from Oregon Inlet.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Smithson, Mrs. T. J. Cooper and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Yelma Allen and daughters spent Saturday at Nags Head.

NORTH CAROLINA MEANS BETTER LIVING

Probably no single improved farming practice has increased the income and living standards of North Carolina farmers more than the comparatively recent use of hybrid corn. Less than twenty years ago, only about 1% of our corn acreage was planted with hybrid seed corn; this year, about 90%. Higher yields, better quality and the dependable production under adverse conditions that hybrids offer add up to more profit per acre—and account for their rapid acceptance by our farmers.

Similarly, recent years have seen greatly increased acceptance of the "legal control" system governing the sale of beer and ale in North Carolina, in the interest of temperance and moderation.
