TERRY SANFORD TO SPEAK NOVEMBER 30 SAA IN BELHAVEN

Governor Elect On Program At 25th Annual and Anniversary Meeting

Terry Sanford, Governor-elect of North Carolina will be the principal speaker and honor guest at the annual Southern Albemarle Convention which marks the close of its 25th year, to be held in Belhaven Wednesday, November 30th, Mrs. Scott Topping of Pantego said this week. The meeting will be held at Pantego High School.

The Association was formed in October 1935 at Columbia by the counties of Dare, Hyde, Tyrrell and Washington, and has since added Beaufort and Martin to its list. The last year the presidency was held by W. F. White of Tyrrell, and according to custom will go to Washington County next.

The organization has been for most in the movement for roads and bridges in the Southern Albemarle Region. County vice presidents are as follows: Dare, W. W. Edwards; Beaufort, S. T. Moore; Hyde, W. I. Cochran; Martin, Robert Cowen; Tyrrell, W. Charles Cochran; Washington, James H. Ward. At the meeting in Columbia in October of last year, J. M. Broughton, Jr., Chairman of the State Highway Commission was present. The association led the movement to name the Alligator River bridge (now under construction) for Hon. Lindsay Warren, now a state senator.

The annual meeting is being held a month late this year in part because of it having been an election year, with the election so close to the meeting time, and in part to enable Mr. Sanford to attend.

KNAPP BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED NOV. 28TH CHAPEL HILL

Currituck's Benefactor Left Remarkable Contribution to Institute of Government

Joseph P. Knapp, the New York publisher who came to Currituck County to live and donated to his adopted county the greater part of a magnificent school system, left to the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina the means to erect a million dollar building to house its activities. This building is to be dedicated in a program extending over several days, beginning next Sunday, November 27th, and representatives of County Governments from all North Carolina will attend.

The first section will be devoted to counties of the First, Fifth and 12th Congressional Districts, and on the program will be Senators Ervin and Jordan, Governor Hodges, Lt. Governor Luther Barnhardt, Terry Sanford and H. C. Philpott the Governor and Lt. Governor elect, and Congressmen Bonner, Scott and Taylor. Victor Meekins, will represent the Dare County Board of Commissioners. He said this week he looked forward with pleasure to this journey, because he had been greatly impressed by Mr. Knapp's concern for the progress and welfare of this area. "I recall that I sent him word about the effort of Mrs. Minnie Fulcher to raise funds for building a Methodist church at Frisco to replace the one destroyed in the hurricane of 1932, and he sent Mrs. Fulcher several hundred dollars," Meekins said. "I once asked Mr. Knapp about the widely circulated story that he would have located in Dare County save for high prices charged him for land, and Mr. Knapp said there was nothing to it, for he had never considered coming to Dare County to locate, as he had already made up his mind to buy Mackey Island which belonged to his friend Thomas Dixon, the novelist."

Mr. Knapp had come to the Dixons property to hunt on several occasions and Mr. Dixon, having been financially crippled by his venture in real estate at Wildcres in the N. C. mountains welcomed Mr. Knapp's offer to buy Mackey Island.

HEAVY PENALTIES IF CANVASBACK OR REDHEADS ARE SHOT

Duck Season Opening Saturday, Nov. 19th Calls For Sharp Eyesight of Hunters

Sharp eyesight will be needed by duck hunters Saturday, November 19th to avoid shooting two kinds of ducks that are on the restricted list this season. Rigid enforcement against shooting Canvasback and Redhead ducks has been promised by the U. S. Wildlife Bureau. Hunters will have to let the birds come close up, and then it is almost impossible to tell a female redhead from a greater scaup.

The U. S. officials advise that there is great scarcity of canvasback and redheads this season. They are birds greatly desired for eating. The canvasback is a powerful flier, usually in V-formation. The hens are grayish, and the drakes have a black breast and rump, and white body.

The redhead hens are brown with gray wings, and have black breast and rump, and gray body. Any hunter who doesn't know one duck from another may be up against it and will surely need an experienced guide with him.

The daily bag limit is three ducks on other varieties. Up to now, the goose hunting has been below par, due to mild weather and light winds; perhaps the most unfavorable weather for duck hunters and fuel dealers in many years. Birds are not flying, but resting comfortably most of the time, out of range of the guns of hunters.

RED CROSS GIVES EACH PEOPLE OVER $67,000

Larger Part of Sum Required to Aid Distressed Homes at Stumpy Point Which Had Heaviest Losses

The greater part of the $67,186.76 allotted to Dare County for relief of victims of Hurricane Donna will go to the community of Stumpy Point where losses were heaviest, and disastrous to some families. Many homes were severely wrecked, some of them having been floated for quite a distance from their foundations.

This does not include the cost of administration and surveys made by Red Cross staff members who worked in the area for several weeks. Some small sums were allocated to Colington, Kitty Hawk, Roanoke Island, and on the South Banks, including Ocracoke Island.

Many applications were made by persons with no valid claim for gifts from the Red Cross, and were denied. A survey by the Small Business Administration resulted in several loans being assigned to the area.

'CAPE HATTERAS SEASHORE MAKES CASE FOR ITSELF'

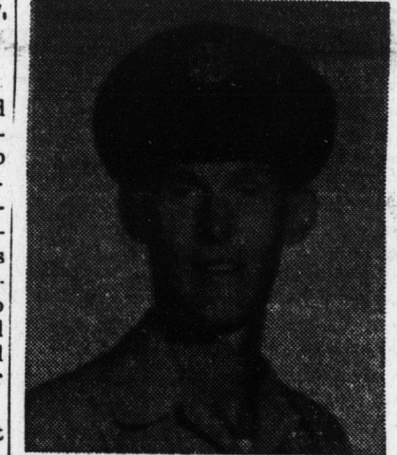

Saturday Evening Post Gives Big Spread in Color to Unique North Carolina Area

"We drove back up the Banks, convinced that a National Seashore makes a good case for itself," says Jim Bird, a writer from the west, who has done a big spread in color with a long article on the Cape Hatteras National Seashore published in this week's Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Bird goes thoroughly into the subject from Whalebone Junction to Ocracoke Inlet, and says in his comprehensive and complimentary article about the whole area, that "For our money the village of Ocracoke retains, more than any other settlement on the Banks, its original, salty, quiet charm. It lies in rather helter-skelter pattern around a circular harbor and seems drowsily unconcerned with modern times... an influx of tourists hasn't changed its narrow winding-streets which saw their first automobiles just eight years ago. Nor has it altered the gracefully wind-twisted live oaks and cedars or the neat frame houses with their picket fences and banks of Oleanders."

Mr. Bird mentions the splendid help given him by Park Supt. Bob Gibbs; he refers to Aycock Brown, to A. S. Austin of Hatteras, who fought the park, and Victor Meekins of Manteo who favored it. He tells how it came in to being, when forward looking men, (principally Lindsay Warren, and the late W. O. Saunders of Elizabeth City) planned the park, and brought some 2,500 men to the area, and a vast amount of money was spent in rehabilitation work for the benefit in many ways, of the area and its people.

DARE'S CLAIM FOR HURRICANE RELIEF WOULD TAKE ALL

Projects Sought Equal to Sum Allocated to State For All Needy Counties

A claim filed in Raleigh requesting a total sum of $1,139,500 for Hurricane relief funds is equal to about all the entire sum allocated to the State of North Carolina for the several distressed counties, victims of Hurricane Donna on Sept. 11th, according to information received by this newspaper. The report was prepared and sent to Raleigh by a special committee appointed by the Board of County Commissioners, and some 80 per cent of funds asked are for projects that do not qualify.

Of the total sum listed $896,500 is asked for breakwater and other purposes at Stumpy Point, or more than half of all the money available to all the counties in North Carolina. Grants of money will not be made for new projects, but only for temporary relief or repairs to existing facilities damaged by the hurricane.

A breakdown of the request for 15 areas in Dare, including $64,500 for engineering fees totals $1,139,500, as follows: For Stumpy Point, $896,500; for Manns Harbor $3,130; East Lake $8,400; Mashoes $2,970; Roanoke Island $40,900; Colington Island $2,100; Kitty Hawk $32,380; Nags Head $3,950; Rodanthe $6,750; Salvo $400; Avon $26,000; Buxton $2,000; Frisco $4,700; Hatteras $3,820; and Mosquito control $40,000.

The committee appointed to make the survey consists of Horace Hooper, Chairman, Frank Cochran, county director of Civil Defense; Robert Walker, county sanitarian; Dr. W. W. Harvey, chairman of the Dare Waterways Committee and Lawrence Swain.

The report was completed and filed without being submitted to the full Board of Commissioners who sponsor it. It embraces briefly, shore erosion, drainage and mosquito control. However, due to the restraints governing the awards of Federal relief funds, it is feared the inclusion of many projects which do not qualify, may result in all projects being weighed in the same light with a loss of some projects, which qualify.

DARE HAS MET HALF GOAL TOWARD CANCER RELIEF

As yet only $758.84 toward a goal of $1,500 in cancer relief funds in Dare have been collected. Mrs. Raymond Wescott said this week that some communities have not yet reported. Contributions may be made however, to Mrs. Wescott or others mentioned in the following preliminary report:

The damaging effects of hurricane Donna are showing again in the response to the collection for Cancer Relief Funds. The majority of the people contacted are willing to give and want to be more generous than their resources will allow. The spirit of the nine people who make up the Mashoes community is evidenced by their check for fifteen dollars. Because of the very successful Crusade last year this year's goal for the county is $1,500. To date the total amount reported is $758.84. Several communities are yet to report and all workers are asked by Mrs. Raymond Wescott, county chairman to report as soon as the volunteers have finished in the community. A complete list will be published as soon as all areas are heard from.

A letter received by Mrs. H. O. Bridges, president of the Dare unit of American Cancer Society, reads in part "The check you sent was the silver lining to the dark cloud hanging over our family. We did not see how... could get another treatment. Our spirits were lifted in spite of knowing that the treatment is just a temporary relief." Accompanying one of the community reports and check was a request for bandages to help a victim bedridden from Cancer.

Appreciation is expressed by Mrs. Wescott and others in the local unit who know of the many calls for help for the fine cooperation from the community volunteers. Several workers have also expressed the satisfaction they received from working for this cause and offered to help whenever needed.

An interesting fact uncovered by six volunteers was that out of 204 persons over thirty-five years of age only 54 have had a physical examination in the last two years that would detect Cancer. The theme for the Crusade is "Fight Cancer with a checkup and a check." Everyone is strongly urged to have the annual checkup and get Cancer before it gets you.
