ATTENDING RURAL AREAS DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE

Three members of Woodstock Electric Membership Corporation will be in Washington, D. C. May 14-15 to participate in a national conference called to discuss means of providing new economic activity in rural areas.

The meeting — known as the Rural Areas Development Conference — will attract more than 750 rural electrification leaders from across the country. It is sponsored by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Attending from Woodstock EMC in the Belhaven area will be: Warren Harris, Vice-president; Alton Selby, Secretary-Treasurer, and William W. Bulluck, manager.

Clyde T. Ellis, general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, said the conference was called for the prime purpose of providing rural electric co-operatives with information which they can use in helping their areas in community and industrial development programs.

"We hope the Administration leaders who appear at the conference will give us some concrete information which can be translated into action at the local level," Ellis said. "Rural electric co-operatives around the nation are already to move with this program; in fact, many already are providing leadership in local redevelopment efforts."

CARS AND APPLIANCES IN MAY SURVEY CENSUS

The May Current Population Survey will include special questions on ownership of automobiles, home food freezers, automatic clothes dryers, and television sets in addition to the regular inquiries on employment and unemployment, it was announced today by Director Joseph R. Norwood of the Bureau's field office at Charlotte.

The number of television sets per household is being obtained at the request of the Advertising Research Foundation. The information on automobiles, freezers, and clothes dryers is being collected for the Household Economics Research Division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for use in a study of life rates for selected durable goods. The questions will cover whether or not the cars and household appliances were new or used when purchased and year of purchase.

The Current Population Survey will be conducted in this and in 332 other areas of the country during the week of May 15. Information will be collected locally by Mrs. Virginia L. Davis of Wanchese.

SOCIAL SECURITY STATUS EXPLAINED BY BUREAU

Your old-age, survivors and disability insurance system is self-supporting through social security taxes and interest on its trust funds.

If you have wondered what your contributions have been, based on maximum wages from 1937 to 1960 inclusive as an employee, this amount would be $1,290. Your employer has contributed the same amount. This makes a total contribution of $2,580. Your wages over this period would have been $82,800.

These contributions, not only from employees but also from self-employed persons, make up the trust funds. Monies not being used to pay for benefits to retired workers, survivors and disabled people are placed in the trust funds and invested in U. S. Government securities. The interest from the investment is added to the reserve fund. Interest now being received is much greater than the total administrative expense of operating old-age and survivors insurance.

Social security is "not something for nothing." In the long run, the value of the worker's contributions will just about equal what he will get back in payments. In the meantime, he has had not only protection against possible death but also disability protection.

At present the trust fund has a balance of about twenty-two billion dollars, with interest on securities being over one-half billion a year. This, along with future income from covered workers, is expected to be sufficient to meet all expenditures.

HYBRID CORN TEST BY HYDE COUNTY STUDENTS

The Hyde County Training School agriculture students have undertaken a hybrid corn test demonstration on the farm of David Lurell Blount of Route 1, Swan Quarter, reports C. R. Downing, Vocational Agriculture Teacher at the school.

The class has put in four rows each of 16 corn hybrids. Each will receive the same amount and kind of fertilizer and later the same side dressing. All of the varieties have been tested by the state experiment station, but this demonstration is to determine which varieties are best suited to the soil and climate of this section.

In the Fall the students and their teacher will gather the ears from a designated number of stalks of each variety, shell the corn, weigh it and test for moisture content. They will also check on the demonstration throughout the year for diseases, insects and general growth habits. The varieties will also be checked for yield. The varieties to be checked are N. C. 288, N. C. 270, Coker 911, Coker 67, Coker 16, Coker 811, Coker 616, McNair 304, Watson 516, Speight 201, Speight D 8, U. S. 523 W, Dixie 29, V.P.I. 648, N. C. 46, and McNair 444. The demonstration is being conducted in cooperation with the N. C. Extension Service.
