By JEFF PAUL

'Twas the morning of Christmas and I awoke from a sleep, that had been full of dreams of fish in the deep. The noise that woke me was a shot from a gun—I jumped out of bed and started to run, to the window to see what the commotion could be. Bang! There was the noise once more, it seemed to come from the window as far as I could, and saw a blue truck turn 'round by the wood. It stopped at the Balance home next door, and that deafening noise sounded once more.

Then the truck stopped right out front, and a little man hopped out with a grunt. He loaded a gun—and bang went the blast, by his last time I hoped it would be his last. But then with a voice filled with cheerful glee he yelled "Merry Christmas" right straight at me. I recognized "Fate" (who is a Midgett you know), and yelled "Merry Christmas" so I could show, my gratitude to the celebrant as down the road in his truck he went, to carry on a custom of old, an Outer Banks custom I'm told. So a guy from New Jersey got a big kick, out of seeing "Fate" Midgett playing "Old St. Nick".

Speckled trout are still making surf fishing interesting when the weather and water are favorable. The sloughs abreast of the "cottages" and down Frisco way still seem to be the "hot spots". The McCoy's (Mr. and Mrs.), Capt. Bernice Ballance, Bill and Carol Dillon, "Es" White, Ray Miller, Archie Scarborough, John Wasili, Edgar and "Buddy" Hooper, Fatio Gray, "Grocer" Conners, Clarence Brady, Alfred Gray and Dewey Parr are the "die-hards" who, evidently, will be there when the last trout wends its way south.

Willard and Nancy Taylor are still here, fishing when there seems to be a chance of beaching something bigger than a trout. Willard continues to throw a 4H Hopkins over the bars in hopes a stripped bass will pay some attention to it.

It seems the first run of stripers have passed Hatteras and are now enjoying the warmer waters of the Ocracoke surf where, last Saturday, 49 big stripers were caught in one haul. Drive carefully, Happy New Year . . . and Good Fishin' to you all.

CARD OF APPRECIATION For the many cards, flowers, letters, visits and other acts of friendship extended me during my recent hospitalization, please accept my heartfelt thanks. IVEY H. EVANS
