All Parents Urged to Keep Children Home; For Their Own Benefit and That Of Others

All children and young people under 20 years of age are being warned by Dare County health officials to avoid gatherings of all kinds, due to the widespread outbreak of infantile paralysis in North Carolina and Virginia. Dr. K. C. Moore, county health officer, urges parents to keep their children away from moving picture theatres, picnics, Sunday Schools, and other places where large groups of people meet. He also advises that children be kept in their own homes as much as possible.

No cases of polio have yet been reported in Dare County, but this week it was announced that Mrs. Brent Wright, 29, of Newport News, Va., became ill with the disease 10 days after returning to her home from a visit with Mrs. T. C. Sawyer, Jr., at Nags Head. Mrs. Sawyer's home is in Camden.

School openings have been postponed. In order to make this move effective, it will be necessary for children and young people to stay away from other gatherings.

Dr. Moore asks full co-operation from every parent in the county. It is for the benefit of every child and grown person in the county, and if sufficient care is used, the county may escape the scourge entirely. Otherwise, the consequences may be tragic.

"Be it remembered that a Superior Court of law is this day opened for the County of Hyde at the Courthouse in Swan Quarter, N. C.

"Court convened at 10 a. m. Monday, August 21, 1944, and the court finding that the jury has not been summoned for this term if court, no witnesses subpoenaed and no cases calendared for trial.

"It is ordered that court be adjourned, Sine die."

So reads the minutes of the Superior Court session that convened in Hyde County Monday, with Judge Q. N. Nimocks, Jr., presiding.

Hyde County officials were wide-eyed Monday morning when Judge Nimocks arrived in Swan Quarter to hold the term of court as called for by law and as appeared on the court calendar. The sessions can be and generally are called off by the County Board of Commissioners, but the Board over-looked the matter and the Judge came down to hold court. But, there being no business at hand, he quickly adjourned and went fishing.

The public laws of 1941 provide for a special term of court to be held on the 3rd Monday in August of each year and continue for one week for trial of civil cases. It also provides that if in the opinion of the Board of County Commissioners of Hyde County it is not advisable or necessary to hold said additional term of court, and such fact is so stated in a resolution duly adopted by a majority on or before the 2nd Monday in July that the court can be called off. The Clerk of the Board is instructed to send the Judge presiding a copy of the resolution.

County officials were surprised when the Judge arrived to hold court. Sheriff Pratt Williamson was in Washington on business. Deputy Branch Spencer called the court opening. Clerk of Court Ralph Roper was on hand and as much surprised as anyone, as was Attorney O. L. Williams.

Judge Nimocks went fishing Monday afternoon and caught several nice fish out in Swan Quarter Bay. He also went Tuesday morning to make even larger catches.

The same mistake on the part of the Commissioners was made last year; but the presiding judge inquired before coming to the county and learned from Board Clerk that while no resolution to call off the court had been made, no jurors had been drawn, and no cases were on the calendar. He did not come to hold the session.

The session of court Monday will cost the county $150. The law allows the Clerk of Court $100 for each court session and the sheriff $50. Since no jurors were summoned, that and other costs of a usual court term were not incurred.
